KEARNEY, Neb. (AP) A third victim has accused a former Kearney church youth pastor of sexually assaulting him as a teenager.

Sources say 37-year-old Thomas Jones was arrested Friday on a Buffalo County warrant charging him with two counts of felony third-degree sexual assault of a child.

The latest charges accuse Jones of having sexual contact with a boy under 14 on two occasions between September 1st, 1999, and November 25th, 1999.

Jones now faces a total of six felony counts accusing him of sexually assaulting boys between 1999 and 2006.

Court records show the other counts involve accusations from two males, now ages 23 and 15, that Jones had touched them inappropriately and exposed himself to them in 2001.
