Baptist Pastor Convicted Of Raping Boy From Church

September 12, 1992

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — A Baptist minister has been convicted of raping and sexually molesting a teen-age boy in his congregation. The Rev. Edward Quakenbush, pastor of the New Testament Baptist Church in the town of Wyoming, was convicted Thursday of six counts of sexual assault. He could be sentenced to life in prison. Quakenbush, 42, denies the charges. Witnesses testified that the minister had befriended the boy, then 12, while helping his family through financial problems. Prosecutors said Quakenbush used his authority as the child's pastor and a father figure to force him to succumb to oral sex, fondling and rape.
