A former teacher at a private Carrollton school for children with learning disabilities is accused of sexually assaulting several students.

David Paul Green, 66, was arrested Thursday on four counts of sexual assault of a child and one count of indecency with a child by contact. A fifth count of sexual assault is pending, police say.

Carrollton police said Green was arrested at his home in Wills Point. He helped to found the St. Anthony School in Carrollton in 1998 and worked as a teacher there until retiring in 2010.

All of the incidents are believed to have happened off school grounds at Green's home when he lived in Carrollton, according to police spokeswoman Nicole Rodriguez.

The assaults started between 2000 and 2006, and at least some continued beyond that time frame, Rodriguez said.

All of the victims are boys who were between the ages of 14 and 16 when the assaults began, according to police.

"We don't know of any other victims at this time," Rodriguez said. "We're hoping that ... if there are some other victims that they'll come forward."

Tony Cinquepalmi, the owner and executive director of the St. Anthony School, said Friday that he was shocked by the charges.

"This is a punch in the gut," Cinquepalmi said, adding that he hadn't been in touch with Green since his retirement. "I am angry and deeply disturbed by Mr. Green's actions."

The school has between 75 and 100 students with learning disabilities, such as high-functioning autism, Asperger syndrome, attention deficit disorder and bipolar disorder. School officials sent a letter to parents on Friday notifying them about Green's arrest.

The school does annual background checks on its employees and had found no issues with Green, Cinquepalmi said.

A check of Dallas County court records shows Green was arrested in September 1981 in Dallas for public lewdness. Green received 12 months' deferred adjudication probation. Once his probation was successfully completed, the case was dismissed. Because it was deferred adjudication, it is not considered a conviction under Texas law.

"My personal opinion would be that, yes, that would raise a red flag for me," Rodriguez said of the arrest.

Cinquepalmi said he never would have hired Green if he'd known about the arrest.

Green also served as executive director of the San Marco School for students with learning disabilities in Plano, according to the school's website. He leased space at the Mount Olive Church of Plano from March 2013 until the school closed in May, according to church pastor Sam Fenceroy.

Fenceroy said he knew Green only in passing. The San Marco School had only three students, he said.

The St. Anthony School website states Green received his special education certification in the 1970s. The website for San Marco

School states Green has worked for years in both public and private school settings. It says he taught in state school programs in the 1970s before moving to Richardson ISD. In the early 1980s, the website says he worked at Green Oaks Hospital. He then helped to found a free-standing day hospital program in Dallas. He also worked with Cinquepalmi at New Day of Dallas in the 1990s.

The police investigation is continuing.

I was a student at this school, and I'm repulsed of what I've heard. I did graduate from there in '04 and just to think he was doing this to students while I was there is sick. I did know he was gay, and that he was always nice to me but now that I hear this I just wanna barf. He deserves to be in jail. He shouldn't have done what he did and he will have to pay for it soon.

Why did he suddenly leave the school in 2010? Was there a big goodbye party for him or was it a quiet and speedy exit?

He is not gay. He is a pedophile. It doesn't matter the gender of the child, just the fact it is a CHILD whom he victimized.

If he's preying upon children, he's not gay. Gay is a preference for ADULT members of the same sex. He's a pedophile.

Same thing that's always gone on, the internet raises awareness. People have this naive view of the past like people didn't use to do these things or did them less. Humans are still the same animal we've been for centuries, it's our technology and culture that has changed.

It's not a Catholic Church school it's just named after after the saint of the lost soul.

What does "founding" mean? If he helped "found" the school then why would he be "hired"? If I helped found a business I doubt I would be hired on - I would be a boss or one of the bosses, no?

He was the co-founder and co-owner of the school. He left suddenly in 2010 and students were not told why he left.

". Because it was deferred adjudication"?? I don't know exactly but it is my impression that this law was originally intended for certain juvenile offenses and for younger criminals. Am I wrong? The intent, as I remember, was to get certain things that dumb kids would do taken care of without ruining their lives. I don't think it was ever intended for adults and especially not for things like "public lewdness". Some enterprising Texas politician should introduce a law to fix it.

Ya I can't believe he was even hired after that, whether it's considered a conviction or not. He did it...
