

ADVERTISEMENT

Jackson pastor Danny Ray Hollis faces civil suit in child sex case

4:12 PM, Mar. 26, 2013

A A

Hollins

Written by Ruth Ingram
ringram@clarionledger.com

FILED UNDER

News

A Jackson pastor accused of sexually abusing a 13-year-old is facing a civil lawsuit filed by his accuser.

Allegations surfaced in October 2012 that the Rev. Danny Ray Hollins, pastor of Greater Fairview Missionary Baptist Church, lured and coerced the girl to have sex with him during a summer 2012 church convention. Hollins reportedly stepped down as pastor then but is listed now on the church's website as the pastor, including a gospel message he authored on the website's home page.

Jackson police officers investigated the allegations, but Hollins was not charged. However, the Hinds ...

CONTINUE READING IN OUR PAID ARCHIVE

ADVERTISEMENT

Most Popular Most Commented More Headlines

- 1 Bulldogs, Eagles have big weekends
- 2 For special-ed students, diplomas, jobs elusive
- 3 In-depth report: Special-education students failed by the state
- 4 Aggravated DUI charge against MSU student reduced
- 5 Man says he ate birds, turtles in 13 months adrift

Featured Video

Former Mississippi State star Horatio Webster and his son Malik Newman share a unique bond. For much of their lives basketball has been everything, but their relationship extends