

January 21, 2014

Mark Lewis, California Pastor, Says He's Innocent Of Firebombing Ex-girlfriend's House

01/14/14 12:14 PM ET EST AP

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A Northern California pastor arrested on suspicion of firebombing his ex-girlfriend's house while six people were inside says he had nothing to do with the attack.

Mark Lewis, pastor of the Fellowship Baptist Church in Vacaville, told KCRA-TV (<http://bit.ly/L7G7UZ>) the three other suspects arrested in the case have falsely accused him of being involved.

Lewis was arrested on Friday, a day after the attack, on suspicion of arson on an inhabited dwelling, conspiracy and stalking. No one was hurt, although police said six people were sleeping at the home during the attack.

Lewis' ex-girlfriend, Sarah Nottingham, told KCRA that she and Lewis dated for a year, and he told her he wasn't ready to end the relationship and threatened her. She had taken out a restraining order against him.

Filed by David Moye |

2 people are discussing this article with 2 comments

Empty text input field for a comment.

250 words

Highlighted Most Recent Oldest Most Faved

Rodney C. (CocaColaKid)
SUPER USER · 633 Fans · Southern Democrat and Pragmatist

★ 2

He'll finally admit his involvement, cry and say that the Devil had taken over his life..But he's found his faith again...and Christ has forgiven him. That's the beauty of religion...you can always get redemption with doing a thing just by saying Jesus has forgiven you.

14 JAN 10:07 PM

↩ REPLY ★ FAVE ... MORE

Nunu Bizness (nitrodiver)
SUPER USER · 207 Fans

It wasn't me...it was the church elders!!!

14 JAN 2:03 PM

↩ REPLY ★ FAVE ... MORE