LAS VEGAS (AP) — Nevada authorities say a former pastor who disappeared after he was accused of sexually assaulting teenage girls in his congregation has been arrested in Mexico.

Henderson police say 55-year-old Otis Holland was arrested late Wednesday in Tijuana by Mexican police and turned over to U.S. marshals. He's jailed in San Diego pending transport to Henderson.

The former United Faith Church pastor had been sought on warrant charges of conspiracy, child abuse and 11 counts of sexual assault of a victim under 16.

Holland was arrested in December 2010 and again last January on allegations that he abused children as young as 7 years old at locations in Henderson and in Las Vegas.

His church held services at a tax service business in southeast Las Vegas.
